

GENERAL PRACTITIONERS CHAMPIONING PERINATAL CARE: CONSTITUTION

1. NAME

General Practitioners Championing Perinatal Care

Also known as GPCPC

2. AIMS

GPCPC is a network of UK General Practitioners (GPs), who have volunteered their time to work collaboratively on quality improvement in the field of perinatal care in primary care.

We consider that better perinatal care will reduce healthcare inequalities, improve women's health in the shorter and longer term and reduce adverse childhood outcomes and experiences (ACEs)

The aims of GPCPC are:

- To promote mutual support and education (both within our group and to other health care professionals), using the knowledge and experience of our members
- To promote evidence-based care, unbiased by commercial interest
- To view maternal and infant mental and physical health as interdependent
- To reach out to other GPs who are interested in perinatal care
- To raise the profile of GPs within maternity care by representing the interests of our group in national and international fora
- To create change within General Practice and within other healthcare professions to recognise the central importance of GPs in maternity care, through action and collaboration
- To grow future leaders within primary care
- To promote the work of not-for-profit organisations which share our aims
- To actively encourage multidisciplinary working between primary care professionals, secondary care and the voluntary and community sectors to put the interests of women and families at the centre of their care e.g. in maternity and mental health care hubs

GPCPC is not:

- A professional body or healthcare licensing body
- Affiliated with any political party or political movement
- Associated with the pharmaceutical industry, breast milk substitutes and baby food industry

- Charging for information it provides
- A charity
